MoversPay changes beginning December 14

Beginning December 14, 2026, MoversPay will transition to a paid product structure. You can choose DP3 Rating Tools, TSP Link, or both, based on the tools your business needs.

Your current access will continue through December 13. No immediate action is required. When you sign in on or after December 14, you will select the product or products you need to continue using MoversPay tools.

Why we are making this change

MoversPay requires ongoing investment to maintain and support. Technology, security, and Cybersecurity Maturity Model Certification (CMMC) requirements have increased the resources needed to maintain the platform. Moving to a paid product structure allows Daycos to continue investing in the tools you rely on and supporting the people who use them.

1. Sign up for a new subscription, but you can continue using your existing MoversPay username and password.

2. Choose DP3 Rating Tools, TSP Link, or both, depending on your needs.

3. Select your payment option. DP3 Rating Tools offers monthly or annual access and a 7-day free trial. TSP Link is available monthly or annually, with a 7-day free trial.

Multi-factor authentication required after launch

Beginning December 14, all MoversPay users will need to set up multi-factor authentication (MFA) before accessing the tools. MFA adds another layer of security by requiring an additional verification step beyond your username and password.

After launch, you will need to sign up for a new account and complete MFA setup before using DP3 Rating Tools or TSP Link. This requirement applies to individual users and users whose access is managed through a company Group. Each person will need to set up MFA for their own account.

If your company has multiple MoversPay users

A MoversPay Group allows your organization to manage users and product access with a shared payment method. Each person uses their own MoversPay login, and access is assigned to individual users.

A Group Owner can add or remove users, manage their product access, and see which products the organization is paying for. This gives your company a way to manage payment centrally while each user keeps a separate login.

For organizations adding users during a billing period, charges are intended to be prorated to the Group billing cycle.

One active session per email address

MoversPay allows only one active session per email address at a time. This means the same account cannot be used in different browsers or on different computers at the same time. Multiple tabs in the same browser will continue to work normally.

If you sign in with an email address that is already active in another browser or on another computer, the earlier session will be signed out and returned to the login page. This happens when that user takes their next action, such as clicking a button or changing pages, rather than immediately when the new login occurs.

For example, if you are signed in on your office computer and then sign in with the same email address on your laptop, the office session will return to the login page the next time you click a button or navigate to another page.

If multiple people at your company need to use MoversPay at the same time, each person should use their own email address and MoversPay login.
